Chair, Table, Couch, Carpet
(a) Table
(b) Carpet
(c) Couch
(d) Chair
Ans.(b)

Q10. The ratio of the present ages of A and B is 4:5. Five years from now, the ratio of their ages will be 5:6. What is the present age of B?
(a) 20 years
(b) 25 years
(c) 30 years
(d) 35 years
Ans.(b)

Q11. Directions: Choose the correct options from the alternative.
52 : ? : : 61 : 25
(a) 12
(b) 9
(c) 16
(d) 21
Ans.(b)

Q12. Find code for MATH
Matrix-I

	0	1	2	3	4
0	M	A	G	H	S
1	S	C	I	E	N
2	C	E	S	T	R
3	B	O	O	K	S
4	L	E	A	R	N

Matrix-II

	5	6	7	8	9
5	P	Q	R	S	T
6	U	V	W	X	Y
7	Z	A	B	C	D
8	E	F	G	H	I

Two matrices are provided: Matrix I uses row and column numbers 0 to 4. Matrix II uses row and column numbers 5 to 9. A letter is represented by row number, column number (for example, 23 means row 2, column 3 in Matrix I; 66 means row 6, column 6 in Matrix II). From the matrices, find the row-column codes for each letter in MATH in sequence, and select the correct option from the given alternatives.
(a) 00,01,59,03
(b) 01,00,95,03
(c) 59,02,01,03
(d) 00,01,03,02
Ans.(a)

Q13. Which number will replace the question mark (?) in the given matrix?

37	4	2	61
24	2	4	92
40	3	5	?

(a) 116
(b) 174
(c) 186
(d) 156
Ans.(b)

Q14. Select the correct combination of mathematical signs to replace (*) signs sequentially and to balance the given equation.
210 * 7 * 2 * 60 * 30 = 90
(a) ×, ÷, -, +
(b) +, ÷, ×, -
(c) ÷, ×, +, -
(d) -, ×, ÷, +
Ans.(c)

Q15. If
'A # B' means 'A is the father of B',
'A $ B' means 'A is the mother of B',
'A @ B' means 'A is the husband of B',
'A% B' means 'A is the wife of B'
'A = B' means 'A is the brother of B', then how is P related to V in the following expression?
P @ Q $ U = R % S # V
(a) Mother's brother
(b) Paternal grandfather
(c) Father's brother
(d) Maternal grandfather
Ans.(d)

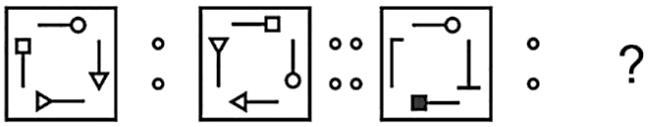

Q16. Address 1: Mrs. Priya Desai, 503/3, Orchid Boulevard, Hyderabad - 500090
Address 2: Mrs. Priya Desai, 503/3, Orchid Boulevard, Hyderabad - 500091

Directions (93-97): Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions that follow.
The Revolt of 1857 occupies an uneasy position in the history of colonial India. For the British administration, it was initially described as a mutiny—a military disturbance that threatened the established order. Later Indian nationalists interpreted it as an early expression of collective resistance against foreign domination. Neither description, however, fully captures its complicated character. The uprising began among sepoys whose grievances included the introduction of cartridges believed to be greased with animal fat, but its expansion reflected deeper discontent with annexation policies, revenue demands, and interference in established social arrangements.

The revolt was neither geographically uniform nor ideologically consolidated. In some regions, dispossessed rulers and landholders sought to recover lost authority; elsewhere, peasants and soldiers acted against economic and administrative pressures. Leaders such as Rani Lakshmibai and Nana Sahib became enduring symbols of resistance, yet their objectives did not necessarily coincide with those of every group that participated. Several regions remained largely unaffected, while some influential Indian rulers supported the British. These differences caution against treating the rebellion as a fully coordinated national movement in the modern sense.

Nevertheless, the revolt produced consequences far beyond its immediate military outcome. In 1858, the British Crown assumed direct control of India, ending the East India Company's rule. The colonial government subsequently reorganised the army and adopted a more cautious approach towards certain princely states and social customs. Although the uprising failed to dislodge British power, it exposed the fragility of colonial authority and entered later nationalist memory as a powerful precedent. Its historical significance, therefore, lies not simply in victory or defeat, but in the tensions it revealed and the political imagination it helped shape.

Q93. What is the central argument of the passage?

(a) The Revolt of 1857 was a fully coordinated national movement whose primary objective was to establish democratic government.

(b) The Revolt of 1857 was a complex uprising whose significance extended beyond its military failure and varied across regions and groups.

(c) The British Crown assumed direct control of India because the revolt had successfully dismantled the East India Company's administration.

(d) The participation of certain Indian rulers on the British side demonstrates that the revolt was primarily a dispute among Indian elites.

Ans.(b)

Q94. Which of the following can be inferred about the different groups participating in the revolt?

(a) Their common opposition to British rule ensured that they shared identical political objectives.

(b) Their participation was determined exclusively by the cartridge controversy rather than by local grievances.

(c) Their involvement reflected overlapping but not necessarily identical grievances and ambitions.

(d) Their differences prevented the uprising from producing any lasting administrative consequences.

Ans.(c)

Q95. Which of the following best illustrates the passage's argument that the revolt was not geographically uniform?

(a) Different regions experienced varying levels of participation, and some influential rulers supported the British.

(b) The British Crown assumed direct control over India after the East India Company's rule ended.

(c) The use of controversial cartridges created resentment among Indian sepoys.

(d) Later nationalists remembered the revolt as a precedent for resistance against colonial rule.
